Durkheim's Works

The Division of Labor in Society (1893)

The Rules of the Sociological Method (1895)

Suicide (1897)

The Elementary Forms of the Religious Life (1912)
Durkheim’s Interests:

What is it that bonds people to each other as social actors?

How can we study these attachments and thereby construct a meaningful understanding of society?
Durkheim: Basic Concepts

Social Facts (aka “Emergent Properties”)

“...a category of facts with very distinctive characteristics: it consists of acting, thinking, and feeling, external to the individual, and endowed with a power of coercion, by reason of which they control him.”

“...it is to them exclusively that the term ‘social’ ought to be applied.”

From: The Rules of Sociological Method
Durkheim: Basic Concepts

Mechanical Solidarity:
- Cohesion based on similarity
- Common rituals and routines
- Normative and repressive social controls
- Collective Consciousness
- Rudimentary Division of Labor (e.g. by gender)

Organic Solidarity:
- Cohesion based on mutual interdependence
- Specialization creates need for interdependence
- Co-operative legal social controls
- Individual Consciousness
- Complex Division of Labor
Max Weber
(1864 - 1920)
Weber's Works

The Protestant Ethic and the Spirit of Capitalism (1904 - 1905)

The Methodology of the Social Sciences (1903 - 1917)

The Agrarian Sociology of Ancient Civilizations (1909)

Economy and Society (1914)

General Economic History (1923)
Weber's Interests:

Rationality -

• Rational social action (goal orientation vs. value orientation)

• Rationalization of social groups, into bureaucratic organizations
Weber: Basic Concepts

Verstehen = subjective meaning that rational actors attach to their actions, in a particular social context
Ideal Types:

A model of social action, an exaggeration of a particular social form that captures its essence, and an explanation of its existence.

Not “ideal” in a moral sense of right or wrong.

Basis of comparative study.
